 GrandPrixPlouay

A team of favorites

New women team evolving at the highest level in the world, the american team is currently 3rd in the world ranking of Women's WorldTour. For her discovery of the Grand Prix de Plouay - Lorient Agglomération - WNT Women Trophy, she will present an experienced workforce including three favorites.

In less than a year, Trek - Segafredo has become an absolute reference of the Women 's WorldTour. In Plouay, the Italian-American team will be formed around three renowned leaders: Elizabeth Deignan, Elisa Longo Borghini and Breton Audrey Cordon Ragot. With teammates also accustomed to distinguish themselves at the highest level, these champions can think of victory.

Although the Trek - Segafredo team was launched on the world circuit only at the start of the 2019 season, its members already have solid experience behind them. The six women entered in Plouay have accumulated no less than 39 participations at the Grand Prix de Plouay with two victories and a third place. With a total of eleven participations, Audrey Cordon Ragot will be the most experienced in the pack.

We also note that the team will be led by Ina-Yoko Teutenberg, who has herself experienced three Grand Prix of Plouay between 2002 and 2007.

Cordon Ragot, Deignan et Longo Borghini as Leaders

Trek - Segafredo has presented its first rider list planned at Plouay under the direction of Ina-Yoko Teutenberg.

101. Audrey Cordon Ragot (Fra, 29). The most local of all the participants will have their eleventh participation in the Grand Prix de Plouay. The Morbihannaise has already demonstrated that she is able to compete at the highest world level. A victory in Plouay would crown a tremendous career.

102. Elizabeth Deignan (Gbr, 30). Winner of Plouay in 2015 and 2017, the British, World Champion 2015, is back at the highest level after becoming a mom a year ago. In one of the strongest teams, the recent winner of the OVO Energy Women's Tour will be among the big favorites.

103. Trixi Worrack (Ger, 38). One of the deans of the international peloton will experience her ninth Grand Prix de Plouay six years after her last participation. She will be there to lead her leaders to victory.

104. Elisa Longo Borghini (Ita, 27). A world-class cyclist, the Italian will experience her ninth participation in Plouay. 3rd in 2012, she has already shown that she can win this race. She will be a key element in a formidable collective.

105. Tayler Wiles (Usa, 30). For her fourth participation, the 12th of the Amstel Gold Race 2019 will be a strong teammate to support Audrey Cordon Ragot, Elizabeth Deignan and Elisa Longo Borghini.

106. Ruth Winder (Usa, 26). The US Champion will also be a luxury teammate herself able to play the leading roles as she did by taking the 11th place of Strade Bianche.

The announced substitutes are Anna Plichta (Pol) and Abigail Van Twisk (Gbr).
